3. Commission Comments/Questions

   Commissioner Richards:
   I guess a couple of things. We have a river of rain that hit us this week. We also have a river of new bills coming out of Sacramento that are going to affect San Francisco. Recently we had AB68, which on my first glance at it, actually affects the rent-controlled portion of ADUs; AB69, AB587 that allows subdivision of ADUs; SB330 which regulates the size and the permitting process on ADUs and other things; then AB1515. So, I just want us to feel like we’re being overwhelmed. We don’t have any idea what these bills are going to -- how they’re going to affect us. I’m really concerned about AB330 and its effect on some of the policies. We have like the flats policy in terms of use size and things and I have met with AnMarie Rogers and asked her to please take a look at especially SB330, but these other ones are also going to be affecting us, especially the one around rent control. So, we want to make people aware of that.

   The other thing is two weeks in a row in the Examiner and once in the Chronicle, there was an article by somebody from Labor. And they said, we support absolutely building more housing, however, we’re going to need between 200,000 and 400,00 additional workers in this state to construct them. So, you know, we can approve all we want, but if there’s nobody to build them, we’re going to be in a pickle. So, I just wanted to bring people’s attention to that. And then lastly, the most funny thing, two weeks ago I think we were talking about Plan Bay Area 2040 and I made a comment and said, how can we plan so far in advance because we don’t know where technology is taking us? The velocity, the changes are so big and the velocity so fast, what we think is going to happen in 5 year – 25 years, we just have no idea. You have to look at transportation network companies, Uber, the sharing economy, all of this stuff. And I said I prognosticated about having a futurist. So, and I was just joking. I said, well we’re talking about transit around housing, around transit corridors. We may be flying in cars by then. And lo and behold, yesterday there’s an article about flying cars that are being developed. Uber is planning on doing a flying uber car, too. So, I mean, I really want to understand we’re planning today based on what we think is going to happen today, but there are a lot of things happening tomorrow where TOD may be moot. Who knows. Thanks.

   Commissioner Koppel:
   Yeah, earlier today, President Melgar and myself, had the privilege of attending a press conference with Honorable Mayor London Breed to announce the success of the latest directives to increase accessory dwelling unit production. Ourselves, were there along with the Building Inspection Commissioners, Fire Commissioners and a host of other, you know, groups within city government, but it was just a really good way to actually put this into some context as well, because we were standing in front of six garages that were going to be turned into four units, two studios and two one-bedrooms. And, you know, what you realize when you go and show up to the actual building, is this is so common because it's being done during a soft-story retrofit. And that, you know, the units are on the ground level. So, it's going to be a lot more helpful seniors or handicapped people that are just going to need access issues and its, I think, the clip is you know, we're seeing numbers of over 900 additional units coming through the city's pipeline. And thanks to Planning staff, who has been doing a lot of the legwork with the other departments. And the mayor, mayor's leadership, we're actually getting a lot more housing built.

C. DEPARTMENT MATTERS

4. Director's Announcements

John Rahaim, Planning Director:
Thank you, Jonas. Commissioners, I just wanted to also mention the press conference. And in particular, I wanted to thank two staff people who have been really instrumental for making this happen, Marcelle Boudreaux and Natalia Kwiatkowska. Natalia is now our 24/7 or I guess at least eight or nine hours a day on ADU. She's our ADU person. And one of the very innovative things they developed was this idea of a roundtable where all departments are reviewing the plans at the same time. And that's become a very interesting model. We were able to get through over 900 units that are in the backlog in six months. So maybe less than six months actually. So, I'm really excited about that. We are seeing new applications at the rate of about 500 a year in ADUs and 90% of those are -- will be rent-controlled, because they're being built in rent-controlled buildings. So, it is providing not only more housing supply, but a housing supply that's more affordable than the typical new market rate buildings that are built. So, we're really excited about that and we're looking forward to kind of using this as a model for how we streamline some of our other work. Thank you.

Commissioner Richards:
Exactly what I was going to ask was, would this be a great model to replicate for non-housing production because things tend to take long.

President Melgar:
Through the chair, please, Commissioner. Okay.
