7. Commission Comments/Questions

   Commissioner Moore:
   I wanted to check with the rest of my fellow Commissioners in this particular round of reviewing projects. I ran, due to the size of my computer, which is a normal tablet, I ran into great difficulties given the size of drawings and the enormity of information that need to be processed. And, I am wondering, also running this by Director Hillis, as to whether or not we could start selectively to get hard copies of significantly large projects. O’Farrell, Folsom as well, as unfortunately, the Department’s Budget Review pose major problems in reviewing this time and as we are now going into our 36th or 38th virtual hearing, I think we may have to use an interim provision to receive paper copies on these large projects. I’m wondering how other Commissioners feel about that. Both the Staff can comment [Inaudible] or Mr. Ionin himself is fine.

   Jonas P. Ionin, Commission Secretary:
   Yes. I mean, we can certainly look into doing this. There would, maybe, be a possibility to reinstate hard copies being issued to the Commissioners directly from reprographics. I mean, maybe we can have that, so that, staff can adhere to the shelter-in-place and only go into the office for emergency purposes, but we can certainly look into that Commissioner Moore.

   Commissioner Moore:
   I’d greatly appreciate that.

   Commissioner Diamond:
   I wanted to emphatically underscore Commissioner Moore’s point. I am having a terrible time reviewing the drawings on an iPad or even on a small laptop. The narrative portion is fine but the actual drawings, I have to shrink it so small in order to see everything that’s on and that it’s really hard to read all of the notes on it. So, I, you know, especially to the drawings, I have previously indicated the same desire for CEQA documents for draft EIRs and response to comments. Jonas, your Department has been great about getting those to me. I don’t know if the other Commissioners feel the same way, but in reviewing those, it’s nice to have hard copies.

   I’d also like to make a — as long as we’re talking about the drawings. It seems like every applicant submits their drawings in a slightly different format. Sometimes the proposed and existing are around the same page; sometimes they are pages apart; sometimes we get 3D models, which are very helpful; sometimes we don’t. And I’m wondering if an effort can be made if other Commissioners feel the same way, to figure out what works best for us in our review and let those become criteria. There may have been efforts led to do this in the past.
and I don’t know what the current status is, but I would be very interested in hearing other Commissioners’ thoughts on this.

Commissioner Imperial:
I also support Commissioner Diamond and Commissioner Moore’s on the hard copies. As far as I know, the EIR is something we requested but it not something that’s mandatory. Maybe those are things that I think is very important and in terms of the drawings, yes, it’s a lot of going back and forth on my end as well. And when it comes to other very important documents that involves policy or the long-range developments, those things as well I feel like may need some more hard copies for myself. This is something that we’ll talk about later on but the budget is an example that I was having a hard time to just piece everything in. So, I support. I guess if I would try to prioritize hard copies, the EIRs, the land use or long-range development plans or -- and also big or large projects probably something we should consider as well. I’m not sure about the Discretionary Review but actually there are those graphics as well in the Discretionary Review that sometimes I also have a hard time looking into those pictures as well.

Commissioner Moore:
I just want to briefly comment on Commissioner Diamond and Commissioner Imperial’s comment. In the past, it is quite a few years back, previous Commissions had issues with inconsistencies of drawing submittals. Some people do a great job. Others do a less desirable and hard to understand job. And it's hard without adding lot of extra work to people’s submittals, making too overly precise demands. However, there is a basic standard which at that time was summarized in Submittal Guidelines and I think it’s still on the Planning Commission’s website where there was a little bit more consistency. And I think this may be the time to slowly review what was asked then and see if we still stand with that. And then have staff basically direct for information that is required from all and not just from some: that is the 3D, that is the description of materials, some samples if possible. It’s some very simple tweaks but we have gone so far to sub-standard submittals that I think reconsideration of that at the top among Commissioners [inaudible].

Rich Hillis, Planning Director:
And to Commissioner Moore’s point, we can send out -- Commissioner Moore, I think you were very helpful in creating the Plan Submittal Guidelines so others can see it and get your feedback.

Commissioner Moore:
Thank you, Director Hillis. At that time, we very careful with [inaudible] not to overburden people. It needs to have standard that meets the minimum level of expectations.

Jonas P. Ionin, Commission Secretary:
And I will certainly convey this message and request to staff during our weekly Commission Cases meeting and see if Staff can just start being a little more diligent in plan review when they come to the Commission.

Commissioner Fung:
I'm okay with either way. Whether it's electronic or hard copy. I have a 30-inch monitor and a touch screen on my computer. So, either way works for me.
Jonas P. Ionin, Commission Secretary:
We won't send you any hard copies Commissioner Fung.

Commissioner Fung:
Okay.

Commissioner Tanner:
I was going to second Commissioner Fung for myself. As we roll out how hard copy works, maybe there’s some items where I want that but generally, I’m okay with electronic. So, I will make it a special request to proactively ask that for myself.

Jonas P. Ionin, Commission Secretary:
Thank you, I appreciate that. I will poll the Commissioners before we start sending large packets to your -- whichever receiving address you gave us.

D. DEPARTMENT MATTERS

9. Director’s Announcements

Rich Hillis, Planning Director:
Good afternoon Commissioners. First of all, congratulations. Smooth election restored by faith and democracy. I just wanted to give you -- I emailed out a letter earlier today from Mayor Breed and Supervisors Ronen, Mar and Mandelman that was sent to ABAG and MTC regarding Plan Bay Area 2050 which as you know is the long range regional plan and it focuses on Housing, Environment, Transportation, and the Economy. The plan allocates growth of households and jobs in the region to counties and cities and it is part of the methodology that we use to allocate -- to make the RHNA allocation. It’s ultimately approved by MTC and ABAG which will happen later this year, but the draft of the plan, that was released in December (an original, an earlier draft had been released in the summer) this is the final draft, gave us some concerns and concerns to the Mayor and the Supervisors. And ultimately shifting a growth into San Francisco is about a 53% increase in allocation from new households to San Francisco. So, from about 139,000 to 213,000 households over the plan period, which is to 2050 and we’re not the only city being affected. There are definitely others that are getting increases but we are probably the most significant. I think one of the bigger issues we had is where the growth is being allocated from and where it’s being allocated to in San Francisco. So that ABAG and MTC divide the city into quadrants. So, again most of the increases coming in from the Southeast section of the city which as you know have seen a lot of growth and has gentrification and displacement, pressures, housing many of our communities of color and vulnerable population. So, that gave us concern and that a lot of the growth is being shifted out of more higher resource jobs which communities along the peninsula. So, you'll see kind of those issues being outlined in the article. And one of the principals I think of Plan Bay Area was to further better housing and minimize displacements, so again, we have concerns about this shift. ABAG taking this up tomorrow and voting on the preferred alternative for their EIR to study this, and then MTC takes it up next week, then ultimately adopted later this year after the EIR is certified. So, I just wanted to bring that to your attention because it's moving kind of fast.

And then second item, the MOU for UCSF that you heard in a couple of commission meetings ago was approved by a Committee of the Board of Regents for UC. It's on their calendar for today, I think, for the full Regents. There have been some changes made to it and I think aligns with some of the concerns you have, so there's been shifts in the commitment to Affordable Housing to various AMIs. So before, you'll remember 50% of the new housing — or 50% of — that 40% affordable housing was designated AMI levels below 90% and the other 50% below 120%. Those have been revised to have 50% below 80% AMI, 25% between 80% and 125% between 100% and 120%. So, we've seen some improvements to the Affordable Housing in targeting lower AMIs. So, I just wanted to give you that. Thank you.

Commissioner Moore:
Director Hillis, the letter you sent came in relatively recently and I only glanced at it, but it somewhat took my breath away. I have to [inaudible]. It seems as if there are people pulling strings that do not seem to reflect on reality. You very politely described what's happening but who's pulling the strings here? Is San Francisco not properly represented with these two agencies? It seems as if there's somewhere up there of governing on the top down rather than deal with the realities of a city that is severely impacted not just by COVID but by goals expectations which is limited land resources and a high degree of vulnerable communities are very very difficult to handle. We are building large amounts of housing. It seems to me that we are leading the region. And I'm just trying to politely ask that I get a little bit more background of what is -- where and why this is done useful.

Rich Hillis, Planning Director:
And I think you're exactly right. We're trying to understand that and tell — I mean this is the latest draft which is considered the final draft that came out just before the holidays in December, or before the holidays in December. So, we're trying to understand how this shift was made and I think there's a couple of things going on. They've got a model that they use to model future growth and their strategies that are put into the model in land use assumptions that are made. So, it's been a little difficult for us to get answers to exactly how this happened. I mean I think it was a combination of shifting growth to meet greenhouse gas emissions. Closer to cities that have significant amounts of transit. Some of this seems to be due to a mistake made about how they accounted for our pipeline projects. There are some assumptions we're seeing now though about redevelopment of multifamily housing sites in almost a preference for that over redeveloping single-family home site. So, we're trying to understand that as well and understand why this shift happened so we can better articulate what our technical reasons why we don't think that should happen and the policy reason behind it. So, we will be articulating that at ABAG this evening and in MTC but we will also be meeting with staff to try to exactly understand that.
Commissioner Moore:
So, you will personally be representing us and --

Rich Hillis, Planning Director:
I am a representative of ABAG for the Mayor. Supervisor Mar and Mandelman are on the ABAG as well. And Supervisor Ronen is on the MTC. [Inaudible] who's the Mayor's representative is also on the MTC.

Commissioner Moore:
So, we have an excellent representation to already push back and amend letters appropriate to changes that have occurred and were [Inaudible]

Rich Hillis, Planning Director:
Yes. And certainly, these are not large commissions. So, we can't control what happens necessarily at the Commission, but I think we've got some good policy rationale why we don't think this shift is appropriate.

Commissioner Moore:
Thank you so much for explaining that.

Rich Hillis, Planning Director:
You're welcome.
